"Today we need a nation of Minute Men citizens who regard the preservation of freedom as a basic purpose of their daily life . .

- JOHN FITZGERALD KENNEDY

10 days after his inauguration as the 35th President of the United States.

Twenty years ago, in the dark, uneasy days before Pearl Harbor, the Minute Man of Concord, timeless symbol of our Nation's determination to defend its freedom, emerged as the emblem of the U. S. Savings Bonds Program. When war came, the Minute Man became the rallying force behind the huge and overwhelmingly successful effort to back our fighting men with War Bonds.

In this, the 20th anniversary year of Savings Bonds, the Minute Man of Concord calls all Americans to an unremitting effort to help preserve our peace and freedom, threatened by forces more powerful and resourceful than those we faced in 1941. Though this effort will take many forms, one way open to all is the continued investment in Shares in America, U. S. Savings Bonds, by "citizens who regard the preservation of freedom as a basic purpose of their daily life."

You may well ask why did we repeat the same type of a program in New York City? The reason is that New York City and the entire Manhattan Area represent the na-tion's largest produce market.

Our statisticians tell us that more than 10 percent of Florida's entire fresh citrus crop is sold in the New York market and some 22 percent of all the vegetables we produce is distributed to consumproduce is distributed to consum-ers in that area. When you consid-er the fact that our citrus and truck crops' gross value last year amounted to more than 525 mill-ion dollars, then I'm confident you'll realize why we went back to our largest market place. A number of agricultural or-constance and state acceptes as

A number of agricultural organizations and state agencies assisted us in this promotional activity, some with finances, and a number of others with souvenirs, produce for distribution, and for use at the various events, publicity, and assistance with helpful conclustion. Prior to our visit, special merchandising programs for Florida fruits and vegetables were set up in more than 2,054 chain stores in the area, all designed to increase the movement of our products. the area, all designed to increase the movement of our products. This was a special activity of the recently created Market Develop-ment Section of our Division of Marketing, and particular em-phasis was placed on citrus, celery and potatoes. I had many wonderful exper-iences during this trip with perfaces the most enjoyable were seeing strawberries from my hometown of Starke, and auctioning off a strawberries from my hometown of Starke, and auctioning off a shipment of citrus for $10 a box, more than double the average price received for other citrus that day. I recall with pride the fact that so many buyers complimented our Florida producers because of the quality crops they are sending to the market, and the food editors the market, and the food editors were quick to tell us how grateful they are for the many photo-graphs, recipes, and other aids sent them for their use.

All the people we met advised us that they would be glad to use any materials sent them for promoting our agricultural products, for creating a greater desire on the part of housewives to purchase them and to expidite the moveof our fruits and vegetables through trade channels.

Everywhere we went we were received with courtesy and open arms. The people in New York were surprised to see us again, in fact, it amazed them that repre-sentatives of Florida agriculture would take the trouble to go up would take the trouble to go up there and visit again with them to find out how better our producers could serve them. They also sug-gested ways and means in which we could improve our assistance to them and they agreed that in the year since our last visit that several problems had been solved.

I had occasion a number of times to tell the story of Florida agri-culture on three network radio shows, four local radio shows, to a number of newspaper and trade journal reporters and last, but certainly not least, to Merv Grif-Recently it was my pleasure to journal reporters and last, but make a trip to New York City on behalf of Florida agriculture, and while there I had an opportunity to discuss mutual problems with the people who count in the distribution and consumption of our quality fruits and vegetables.

The project was called the "Second Annual Florida Fruit and vegetable Jamboree," and it followed more or less the same pattern of the program held last year in that, I visited with food editors, produce party, composed of representatives

Our important contacts made during that visit will always be helpful to us. Our official touring party, composed of representatives of various Florida agricultural interests feel that the trip was an unqualified success. They believe, as I do, that a better awareness and a more favorable impression of Florida agriculture was created by our personal contact, and that we'll see proof of this in the insed movement of quality Flor-produce in this important

In this day of increasing compe-tition, only those who are alert to take advantage of the opportuni-ties afforded them, will survive. This is just as true in agriculture as in any phase of business. Magistrate Court Judge Being Sworn In

Back in 1961, following creation of the Magistrate Court in western Palm Beach county by the state legislature, James L. Tyson, Jr., was sworn in as the new judge of that court by Judge Hugh MacMillian, of the criminal court of record of Palm Beach county. Judge Tyson qualified as a candidate for a full four year term as judge and drew no opposition, therefore, in November he will be elected.

Harold Turner Is Asking For School Board Job Again

The experience on the school oard of Harold A. Turner is the main factor which should re-elect him next Tuesday in the Demo-cratic primary, in the opinion of his friends in this area.

his friends in this area.

Two members of the school board with a total of 24 years service are retiring from the school board. Those elected for these two posts will be totally inexperienced.

Two other members are now in their second year of service on the school board. Turner, now in his fourth year, has experience that is invaluable in looking toward the future.

Turner, well known and liked here, is hailed for his solid; con-servative actions, considers a $15,-000,000.00 bond issue for the schools, as urged by his opponent in District 3, as unnecessary at this time. He says he does not want more taxes placed on the homes and properties of Palm Beach County until the necessity arises.

As vice chairman of the school As vice chairman of the school board, Turner says, "All of Florida recognizes the Palm Beach County School system as one of the very best. I am convinced we can maintain high standards and have a good school system and vote for bonds only when school experts recommend such an issue, and all of us clearly see the need for ad-ditional taxes for school purposes." Turner said a great deal has been done for the handicapped pupil and these programs will m certainly be continued. He so "We are beginning to make strides in providing accelerated op-portunities for the superior stu-dent. We have been watching very carefully the matter of education-al TV. When we are able to do so we will embrace the first oppor-tunity to move into this field. Teaching machines are being effectively used in some areas and we are looking for their possible application. Special summer programs are in the offing and the tri-mester school year is probably not far distant."

Hal Dane Seeks Job On County Board

Hal Dane, of Boca Raton, is a candidate on the Republican ticket next Tuesday for nomination for County Commissioner in District 4. Mr. Dane said: "While it is always easy to justify the spending of more tax money, I believe the County income is now at a point where we can make reasonable where we can make reasonable progress without new taxes. So I am against the proposed 1c in-crease in gasoline taxes and also
